Roll-2-Roll Technologies Introduces New Line of Retrofit Kits for Web Guiding Systems

Press Release

Many operations in need of upgrading their current converting line have to deal with replacement of outdated components, such as web guides. Many still run controls and sensors that have been obsolete for years. The mechanical components might still be sound, or they could be rebuilt at a low cost. However, does it make sense to have a web guide with outdated controls and sensors?